Foreword

FOR THE PAST EIGHTY YEARS, from the founding of the first Saint Agnes Academy in 1876 to the present 1956 when we look forward to the opening of a new Saint Mary's High, the school has been governed by unwritten laws which, over the years, have come to be looked upon as traditions. These play an important part in the students' daily lives. Among these customs are the functions exercised by the Student Council, the Class Officers, the Proctors, and in all the student-guided activities which, in themselves, may appear of ephemeral nature, but which through the years, have become so firmly entrenched in our life at Saint Mary's as to have the force of solid tradition. We hope these traditions will be carried forward and continue to live on in the life of the new Saint Mary's and that they will flourish there, commensurate with the increased facilities that will be available.

In this Cauldron we have striven to picture these traditions that through these pages the last graduating class and all other alumnae of the old Saint Mary's, may in future years recall with pleasure and satisfaction the happy days spent in high school.

The History of the High School

THE FIRST SAINT AGNES ACADEMY, built in Stockton by the Dominican Sisters of San Rafael, was located just south of the Mormon Slough on San Joaquin and Taylor Streets. It was a large frame building of three stories, surrounded by gardens, a swimming pool, and shaded walks. It was officially dedicated on March 17, 1876 and served admirably until September 4, 1914 when it was moved to a new brick building at Park and San Joaquin Streets and acquired the title "Saint Agnes College."

Boys from Saint Mary's School on San Joaquin and Washington, which was conducted by the Brothers of Mary, were admitted to Saint Agnes College in 1920, and this coeducational function continued until the present Saint Mary's High School was built at Lincoln and Magnolia Streets and opened for classes in September, 1927. As a combined boys high school and grammar school, this institution was staffed by the Brothers of Mary until 1931 when they withdrew from Stockton and the school was taken over by the Dominican Sisters. The high school girls from Saint Agnes transferred in that year to Saint Mary's and once again the school resumed the status of a coeducational high school.

In September, 1956, the student body will move again. This time it will be to a twenty-five acre campus in north Stockton where the Dominican Sisters and the Franciscan Fathers will conduct classes on a co-instructional plan in new, modern buildings. An enrollment of over a thousand is expected.

Juniors have "almost arrived." As upperclassmen, they find themselves with some cherished privileges: they may leave the campus at noon; they sponsor two dances; they "take over" when the senior snow trip leaves them in charge for a day.

The first junior-sponsored event is the autumn dance. This year "Davy Jones' Locker" with an under-water theme featured flying fish and a life-sized King Octopus. Later in the first semester the juniors began preparations for the religious booth at the Christmas Bazaar and, traditionally minded, they placed it along the east end of the hall and decorated it in blue and white for Our Lady.

May is an activity-packed month for the juniors. They receive their class rings and with them the assurance that their senior status is almost achieved. They present the only formal dance of the year, the Junior-Senior Prom, and on Ascension Thursday, they take their senior guests on the annual picnic usually at Turtle Rock Ranch.

The final edition of the 'Kettle' is published by the class and when elections are scheduled at the close of the term, their year closes with much vigorous campaigning for Student Body officers.

The sophomore is neither new nor old; and so, he finds himself in a sort of no-man's land in which he cannot avail himself of the excuses of the freshman while at the same time he has none of the privileges of the upper-classmen.

A few things the sophomore at St. Mary's is allowed to do: he and his classmates take an active part in the Christmas Bazaar; they sponsor a dance in the spring "for charity;" and then, in April, they produce the "Sophomore Edition" of the "Kettle."

This year, the sophomores, large in numbers and rich in ideas, operated three booths at the bazaar: a grab bag in the form of an electric train; a song dedication booth; and a Parcel Post service that was a complete sell-out. Their spring dance, with a very original theme, "Mr. Rhythm," was held on April 13 at St. Agnes Auditorium.

In intramural sports, the sophs distinguished themselves in handball, by defeating the junior and senior teams, and they fielded volleyball and basketball teams that were a credit to the class.

The members of the class of '59, like other freshmen before them, entered high school "green" and thoroughly nervous. The procedure of moving from class to class at forty-five minute intervals and meeting strange faces everywhere made the beginning of the school year difficult, but Hat Day brought the Freshman Reception and the feeling of belonging at last.

Although the freshmen took an active and enthusiastic part in the intramural sport program, their class activities, by custom, were limited to two events. In December, they sponsored the novelties booth at the Bazaar where they carried out an oriental theme with the title "Magi Market;" and, in the spring, they gave the traditional outdoor luncheon in the Hawaiian manner complete with leis and ukeleles.

Without any doubt, the best part of the freshman year is the end. With the status of sophomore achieved, the future holds out certain guarantees: no more assemblies in Room A with only a loudspeaker to furnish entertainment; no more late dismissals at noon and at three o'clock; no more "low" lockers with everyone piled up overhead; best of all, no longer the last group in every line and in every assembly.

Traditions in Organizations

WHO CAN LOOK BACK on four years at St. Mary's without recalling the noon announcements: "Executive Council meeting at 2:15;" "The 'Kettle' comes out today;" "Block SM meeting in Room 14"? These organizations with the C.S.F., the 'Cauldron' staff and the G.A.A. are the core around which much of St. Mary's student activity centers.

The Executive Council which meets once a month, includes the student body officers and the president and vice president of each class. Its work is to prepare the agenda for the student body meetings, to act as a disciplinary unit in support of the proctors, and to nominate student body officers for the May elections.

The 'Kettle' and the 'Cauldron' staffs are chosen chiefly from the senior class although the juniors and sophomores each publish a special edition of the school paper in May and June. Both publications give the students an opportunity to exercise their literary and artistic talents or to demonstrate their skill in organization or their business ability.

A chapter of the California Scholarship Federation was founded at St. Mary's in 1954, and those students who maintain a high scholarship average may become members. Comparatively new to St. Mary's, the C.S.F. is increasing in numbers each year and its influence is growing accordingly. It aims to develop well-rounded students who will become to-morrow's leaders by applying the motto "scholarship for service."

In the realm of athletics, the Block SM and the G.A.A. give recognition to students who excel in interscholastic and intramural sports. Both organizations are open to any student who can qualify and both sponsor extracurricular activities that add much to the student interest in sports. In the future, both groups should prosper, since the new St. Mary's will be much better equipped in athletic facilities than the old St. Mary's has been.

The Cauldron and Kettle

"Double, double, toil and trouble;
Fire burn and Cauldron bubble."

THESE WORDS introduced the first Cauldron which began publication in 1920. This Yearbook comprised about one hundred and fifty pages devoted mainly to written articles, with a few pictures scattered throughout each section. During the depression years of '33 and '34, the Yearbook was suspended for lack of financial backing, but publication was resumed in 1935 with a small paperbound edition, called Senior Memories. In this form it continued to be published until 1945 when the name Senior Memories was changed to The Green and White, and more pictures were added. The original name Cauldron was restored in 1952 and the Annual took on the form that it has at the present.

During the years 1922-35, The Cauldron, a four-page monthly newspaper, was printed. In 1932 it won the rank of "First Class, Honor Rating---Excellent" from the National Scholastic Press Association. After the school purchased a mimeograph in 1935, The Cauldron became the Kettle. At present, this paper provides its student readers with news of student activities, and is always eagerly anticipated.

Public Speaking

Under the direction of Miss Marcia Lou Brown a class in public speaking met daily throughout the second semester. Members of the class participated in several contests with some success. Dennis Percy placed third in the local "I Speak for Democracy" competition and he also represented St. Mary's in the Native Sons' Speaker's Contest. James Ford was chosen to represent the East Side Lion's Club in their annual contest. His topic was "Youth's Problems of Tomorrow."

Traditions in Religion

FROM THE OPENING MASS in September to the graduation exercises held in Annunciation Church at the end of the school year, religious traditions play an important part in the lives of all the students at St. Mary's. The need for religion is recognized and there are very few of our activities that are not connected, directly or indirectly, with our Faith.

Our chain of spiritual strength begins with the opening Mass, and continues throughout the year with the special Mass Day for each class. Tradition has made the First Friday mass a "must" for many students, and so deeply rooted is this custom that many alumnae are still faithful to it.

The Federation of Catholic High Schools working hand in hand with our student government is another link in the chain which has become one of the strongest forces for good in our school life. Almost every student can claim membership in at least one of the Federation committees: Mission, Christian Life, Publicity, Parish Activity or Christian Literature.

When the Christmas season approaches, each classroom has an Advent wreath, while the Christmas Crib, and the carols at St. Joseph's Hospital and at mass on Christmas morning all contribute to a reverent observance of Christ's birth. Lent brings back memories of the Friday Stations of the Cross and the Holy Week ceremonies.

Our annual retreat is the most significant spiritual event of the year. The silence, the conferences, and the time for prayer give us a chance to collect our thoughts and to think seriously of our future.

Sports, dances, and other school activities convey only a certain transient pleasure. Our religious traditions, stressing the more essential things in life, are the underlying potentials for making our years at St. Mary's fruitful, happy and unforgettable.

Tradition in Activities

MANY OF OUR SCHOOL ACTIVITIES have become so permanently established that they now may be regarded as traditions. Year after year, students look forward to the usual class or school events with lively interest.

Seniors always anticipate "Frosh" Hat Day with the beginning of the term as their first opportunity to show their superiority over the freshmen. Following this, the mighty seniors step down from their lofty throne to welcome the newcomers at the annual Freshman Reception. This affair brings about a closer relationship between the new and the old students. Then in December of the first semester comes one of the oldest traditional events of the year --- the Christmas Bazaar. The feverish excitement of planning, the competition among classes, the tireless efforts of the students --- all these qualities have firmly established the bazaar as the outstanding activity of the year.

Throughout both semesters, initiative and talent combine to make the athletic rallies, held, usually on Friday afternoons, delightful entertainment. The boys' vocal groups and wonderful accordian solos add to these programs and the impromptu costuming often provides the humor. School dances serve as an outlet for the students' boundless energy when each class tries to outdo the other in decorating St. Agnes Auditorium for the evening. However, "The Prom" complete with formal dress, is the most important and never-to-be-forgotten social affair of the year, and on Ascension Thursday, the eventful Junior - Senior picnic is always one of the most welcome fun-days of the whole term.

To the seniors, the last weeks of school with graduation practices, finals, parties and the graduation-night dance are days that are mixed with sadness, not only because they mean the dispersing of the class, but also, because they mean leaving St. Mary's and the traditions to which all the students have contributed so important a part.

Sports

ALTHOUGH SAINT MARY'S has a comparatively small enrollment, it has been traditional each year to field a team in football, basketball, and baseball. September not only means the opening of the school term, but it also signals the opening of football season. Saint Mary's cannot boast an outstanding record for football, but this fact is due not to lack of ability or spirit or fight. In most cases, the opposition has had superior manpower and the Rams were usually worn into defeat.

During the winter months, Saint Mary's really makes headway in the athletic world when the basketball teams get into play. In this sport the school has never had too much trouble in quenching even formidable rivals. In fact, achievement in basketball has always admitted St. Mary's to a post season tournament, and at least one member of each year's team has gone on to star for some college or university.

In the spring, the stress at Saint Mary's is on baseball, and if team achievement has not always made headlines, the spirit of the students is tremendous. Members of the team give up their free time for practice, and make every sacrifice necessary to produce an ace nine. Considering the lack of equipment and facilities, the results have been commendable. Students turn out in good numbers for every game and back the team consistently with their support and cooperation.
